

Glass is one of the most versatile elements when it comes to combining with colors and surfaces. It spices up even the most ordinary designs by giving it an added edge. Glass is a great option because it easily combines with so many other materials. Combine it with stone and you can have a warm, traditional feel.

Combine it with sleek lines and bright colors and you can create a contemporary design. Its use in backsplashes allows light to reflect and create the illusion of an open space. Carol Mulholland of Paradigm Kitchen Design LTD in Vancouver, BC, Canada, believes that glass is a unique element to work as it becomes a growing demand. She has found that it is easy to meet a client's request to bring the outside in when using glass elements. Whether addressing form or function, the dynamic versatility of glass as a decorative element is a strength that cannot be denied. So next time you need to add something vibrant to your space, consider glass ... then consider it done.

Glass Elements

Carol Mulholland ▼

Photo courtesy of Justin Horn